TWO MEXICANS FIGHT AND ONE IS KILLED

Bingham, Nov. 21.—Shortly before 1 o'clock this morning John Baldez, 25 years of age, a Mexican, was shot and killed near the Highland Boy mine by Ralph Lopez, a fellow countryman. Baldez was shot through the left lung and heart and died instantly.

The two Mexicans are supposed to have engaged in a quarrel. After the killing Lopez escaped into the hills, and at an early hour this morning had not been caught, although a posse is on his trail. During the evening a snowstorm covered the ground with about four inches of snow and the trailing of Lopez is expected to be successful.

The body of Baldez was brought to the hall undertaking establishment here and several deputy sheriffs left at once for Highland Boy to join Deputy Julius Sorensen in the search for Lopez. Both men were employed at the Yampa mine. So far as is known neither of the men is married and neither has relatives in the camp.

CRIMSON ELEVEN FINISH PRACTICE

Roar of Cheers From 3,000 Students, Confident of Victory Over Yale.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 21.—Amidst a roar of cheers sent up from the throats of 3,000 of the undergraduate student body of Harvard, the Crimson eleven finished its practice in the stadium yesterday previous to the battle with Yale Saturday afternoon. At the conclusion of the practice the students went through their snake dance on the return from the stadium to the college and if confidence ever reigned supreme in dear old Cambridge it surely was manifested this afternoon.

The afternoon work was of the light order, chiefly a thorough signal drill and a dummy scrimmage. The lineup today was Dana and Hardwick, ends; Storer and Gilman, tackles; Trumbull, center; Bradlee, Mahan, and Brickley, backs; Hitchcock, the veteran guard, was back in his old position, which gives rise to the belief that the former tackle is in condition to play his last game for Harvard.

There was some doubt about Hitchcock's ankle being strong enough to hold out, but all signs of lameness have passed by his work today against the scrubs. Dana was in O'Brien's place, the latter laying off for a rest. The players left last night for the Vesper Country club near Lowell, where they will remain until Saturday morning. There will be no work to speak of, although two signal drills are on the schedule for Friday.

The Yale team arrived in Auburn-dale about 7 o'clock last night. Today they will have their first glance at the stadium when light signal practice will be held.

Yale Money Hesitates.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Plenty of money was offered in Wall street yesterday on the Harvard-Yale football game Saturday, but not a great deal of actual betting took place, for Yale men wanted better odds than were quoted them.

On the curb market it was reported that Harvard men were offering $10,000 at 10 to 7. The Yale men wanted 10 to 6, and there was not much Yale money in sight even at these odds.

Fred Schumm, who is one of the leading betting commissioners in the downtown district, said that he could only quote odds of 10 to 8 on Harvard. He reported Yale money as rather shy, but said there was an abundance of money offered by the Crimson supporters. About $1000 was placed during the day.

There were offerings of large amounts ranging from $500 to $1000 even, that Harvard would not score eight points, that Yale would not make a touchdown, that Harvard would kick the first field goal; that the total score would be odd and that Harvard's score would double that of Yale.

University of Pennsylvania, which has been a favorite at 2 1-2 to 1 over Cornell, was a 3 to 1 shot over the Ithacans.

PREMIUMS FOR UTAH PRODUCTS

In the hope of having the premium system of Utah manufacturers in operation before January 1, 1914, Secretary D. F. Collett of the Manufacturers Association of Utah has addressed letters to the manufacturers of the state asking their attitude toward the system. The plan is to establish a coupon system among Utah manufacturers in an effort to stimulate the use of Utah made goods. Each manufacturer, it is proposed, will give coupons with his goods, which may be exchanged at the Manufacturers association for useful premiums.

The letter sent by Mr. Collett follows: "The Manufacturers Association of Utah will undertake a premium system designed to create a greater demand for Utah made goods and to advertise them more thoroughly. Each manufacturer taking part in the plan will issue coupons with his goods in a manner and to the amount he deems best. These coupons will be furnished by the association at a cost not to exceed 15 cents per thousand. A premium catalogue will be issued by the association with one page for each participant, in which he can announce his premiums and advertise his products. These catalogues will be distributed by the association in a careful manner, so that not more than one book will fall into the same hands. The first issue will consist of 50,000 copies, which in itself will be a cheap and efficient means of advertising. If twenty-four firms engage in the plan, the cost to each will be $70. If thirty-six are listed, the cost will be $60, and if forty-eight can be secured the cost will be $50. Such amount will cover the cost of catalogues, pay for their distribution and for such extra clerical hire as will be necessary. The plan proposed will be self supporting as to redemption of premiums, the charges stated being the only cost. It is proposed that each premium listed can be secured by a certain cash payment and the turning in of so many coupons, the association acting as a clearing house. As the plan is a co-operative one, each firm's coupons will be good for each other firm's premiums. This, in brief, is the plan. It is positively the greatest scheme ever undertaken in Utah to stimulate a demand for Utah made goods. The cost will be but very little compared with the great results that will be achieved.

"Will you be one to engage in this plan? Write us immediately as to whether you will join us. A committee will gladly call upon you to make the proposition absolutely plain. Respectfully,"

PRESIDENT WILSON IS IN THE WAY

Washington, Nov. 20.—Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, is persona non grata just now nearly everywhere he goes in the White house. If he dares to raise his voice in a suggestion as to one wedding arrangement, he is frankly told by the feminine members of his family that he is "a mere man" and to go away.

If the distinguished historian and student of political economy attempts to lay his weary head inside a volume of Gibbons or Macaulay in the library, he is shooed out because the room is needed for a consultation or fitting of some article of the trousseau; if he wanders into the family sitting room it is only to find another consultation there, and his one refuge is his office in the executive wing of the mansion.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is the boss. The president was joined in his masculine misery tonight by his son-in-law elect, Francis Bowes Sayre, who is also shooed from the wedding secrets and the wedding plans.

Mr. Sayre was met at the Union station by his fiancée and driven directly to the executive mansion, where he will remain until Sunday, when he will go to Justice Charles E. Hughes's residence, to remain until the wedding day. A dashing reporter asked Mr. Sayre upon his arrival what his "wedding gown" would be. The thirteenth White house bridegroom grinned broadly and said simply: "Oh, just the usual thing, you know; describe it any way you like."

From an unofficial source it was learned that Mr. Sayre will wear on his wedding day the following costume: Black frock coat, pearl gray trousers with a faint pin stripe, pearl gray gloves, gray tie and waistcoat of the same material as the coat, black patent leather shoes with cloth tops and buttons. In his buttonhole Mr. Sayre will wear a white gardenia grown in the White house conservatory and sent to him by the bride. His best man, Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, will be dressed in exact duplication, except that he will wear a pink rose in his buttonhole.

Mr. Sayre will get into his wedding finery early in the morning, when he goes to the White house to escort Miss Wilson to the luncheon given for the bridal couple and party by Justice and Mrs. Lamar. The luncheon over, Miss Wilson will return to the White house to don the wonderful wedding gown for the ceremony.

MENHADEN INDUSTRY HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR
Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—In view of the great importance of the menhaden industry and the popular interest which it has attracted in recent years, the bureau of fisheries of the department of commerce in 1912 undertook a very comprehensive statistical canvass, which has just been completed. A special bulletin giving the results of the canvass will shortly be issued and distributed to the trade.

It appears that the season of 1912 was one of the most successful in the entire history of this industry, which goes back for about half a century. Every factory on the coast, from Maine to Florida, has been visited and complete data have been obtained showing the quantity of fish utilized, the quantity and value of the oil and fertilizer manufactured therefrom, together with the number of persons employed, the amount of money invested and the number of vessels engaged in supplying menhaden to the factories.

The fishery and the industry dependent thereon are most extensive in Virginia, New York, North Carolina, Delaware and New Jersey. In the order named, about 150 vessels were employed throughout the season in catching menhaden for forty-eight factories; 5800 persons made a livelihood in taking menhaden and Syracuse, N. Y.

In converting them into oil and guano, and nearly $8,000,000 was invested.

The enormous catch of 1,951,000 fish, equivalent to over 3,000, credited to this fishery in 1912, with a first value of over $2,000,000. Of this quantity Virginia contributed nearly half. The manufactured products consisted of 6,550,000 gallons of oil and about 90,000 tons of fertilizer, valued at $3,700,000.

This investigation confirmed the previous experience of the bureau of fisheries in regard to the capture and utilization in this industry of other fishes than menhaden. While the purse seines used by the menhaden fishermen are capable of taking all kinds of free-swimming fishes, as a matter of fact during the year 1912 the catch of food species was negligible. Considerable quantities of sea robins, skates, swellfish and sharks were utilized, and in Chesapeake bay herring and perch suitable for human food were purchased by the menhaden factories and converted into fertilizer. This, the only abuse noted during the season is a matter for correction, not through the menhaden industry, but through the local net fisheries at the head of Chesapeake bay.
